Daniel Island Beresford Creek Bridge Reopens to Non-Truck Traffic

Charleston, S.C.— The Beresford Creek Bridge on Daniel Island Drive has reopened to non-truck traffic following the installation of a special-order two-inch thick steel plate.

The plate was recommended by engineers at JMT Inc. after a routine inspection last week found deterioration to one of the beams at the southern end of the bridge, causing it to close for several days.

The necessary signage for the bridge's new truck restrictions remains in place.

Interim Public Services Director Tom O'Brien said, "Keeping our citizens safe is always our number one priority, and we appreciate their patience while we awaited the steel plate's delivery and worked to make this necessary repair."
