Abstract:

The City of Charleston Pamphlets Collection, 1782-1991, is an artificially created collection of pamphlets, reports, and publications retained by the City of Charleston Records Center. The majority of the material is original, although some of the Annual Reports are copies and all of the City of Charleston Directories are reprints or copies.

Scope and Content Note:

The City of Charleston Pamphlets Collection, 1782-1991 consists of pamphlets, reports, and other publications created by or for the use of city employees, departments, and citizens. The collection is divided into four separate series. The documents are organized alphabetically within each series according to the subject, document name, or author's name where available. The first series contains pamphlets recording ordinances and laws passed by the City Council of Charleston. This series also contains regulations and manuals relative to traffic, zoning, and other topics of interest. The second series contains reports and pamphlets created by individuals, departments, or commissions associated with the City. This series is subdivided into Annual Reports and Miscellaneous Pamphlets, which are of a topical variety. The third series contains reports and pamphlets created by outside individuals and entities. These reports were either commissioned by or created for the benefit of the City of Charleston. The fourth series contains City of Charleston Directories and Almanacs. Created by a diverse collection of individuals and businesses, the directories cover the years 1782-1947 and contain information about individuals and businesses operating in the City of Charleston. The fifth series contains publications created by individuals or institutions with no formal affiliation with the City of Charleston. The Records Center retained this material for its relevance to the history of the City.
